

NOTES

1. What is the biggest thing I have seen Jesus do in my personal life this year?
 2. How has God used me this year in the lives of others?
 3. How would I define my relationship with Jesus? Passionate, intimate, ever-growing, dark chocolate rich, mediocre, dying, stagnate? Am I more in love with Jesus and more intimate with His Spirit than I was a year ago?
 4. If I were to be honest, how has my time in the Word been? Where have I been studying lately? What Truth has God been revealing in my life through His Word? Note: our time in the Word is a spiritual barometer for our lives.
 5. How did the Bible live through me this past year?
 6. Am I enjoying prayer?
 7. Is my life defined by the traits of honesty, purity, integrity, character, servanthood, giver, honorable, kind, loving, dependable, trustworthy, faithful, joyful, peaceful, courageous, meek, bold, patient, truthful, and the like?
 8. Am I a spiritual leader who takes a stand for Truth, rescues the weak and downcast, helps the helpless, is a friend to the weak, a restorer of justice, a protector to the widow and orphan?
 9. Do I ponder the fulness of the Gospel daily?
 10. What do my resources (time, talent, finances, attitude, thoughts, passions) say about my focus and priorities this past year?
 11. Has God used me this past year to draw individuals into a relationship with Himself?
 12. What do I want to see God do in my life this coming year? What areas of my life do I want Him to transform, reshape, or change? What is the kind of man/woman He wants to form me into?
 13. Am I fully surrendered? Totally dependent? Completely given? Truly poured-out? Honestly set-apart? 100% sourced by the Spirit to live the bravehearted and Biblical Christian life that Jesus wants to live in and through me?
 14. Is the Holy Spirit real to me? Do I experience His source, power, mind, and attitude daily? Am I fully surrendered and dependent upon God to live my life or does my strength and resource come from myself?
- May this new year draw you into the abundant richness of Jesus more than you ever thought possible.

These are nine virtues that are signs of spiritual depth and maturity: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. It seems true that those who have a strong faith and a healthy spiritual life are constantly working to cultivate these virtues in the way that they live and interact with others. Therefore, our end of year reflection should include questions like these:

LOVE – Did I love others well this year, starting with my own family? Was it evident in my words and actions? Did I love and respect myself?

JOY – Did I experience moments of joy that went beyond simply being happy? Was I able to live in the present?

PEACE – Did I find inner peace in my own heart or did I live with ongoing tension and resentment from the past? Did I seek to make peace among family and friends? Was I able to let certain things go?

PATIENCE – Was I patient with difficult people and in difficult situations, or did anger, frustration, and restlessness take over?

KINDNESS – Was I kind in my words and actions, and did I speak kindly of other people? When others were unkind to me, how did I respond?

GENEROSITY – What percentage of my income did I give away to help others? Where did I volunteer?

FAITHFULNESS – Was I faithful in my spiritual life? Did I cultivate spiritual disciplines to nurture my soul?

GENTLENESS – Was I gentle in sensitive situations? Did I show compassion to those who are hurting?

SELF-CONTROL – Did I manage myself well? Did I eat and drink too much? Did I get enough sleep? Did I choose my words carefully? Was self-care a priority?
