“Whatever It Takes”

- Pastor DJ Patrick says, 'If it doesn't break your heart, it probably won't move your feet.' What does this mean, and why is it so important for living out our faith?
 - What is something that genuinely breaks your heart right now — something you lose sleep over or feel deeply burdened by? How might God be calling you to let that heartbreak move your feet into action?
- In Mark 2:3-5, four friends carried a paralyzed man to Jesus, even tearing through a roof to get him there. What does this kind of 'whatever it takes' friendship look like in real life today?
 - Do you currently have friends who would carry you to Jesus when you're struggling? If not, what is one honest step you could take this week to build or deepen that kind of friendship?
- The crowd in Peter's house was a barrier that kept the paralyzed man from getting to Jesus. What are some 'crowds' — obstacles or comfort zones — that might be keeping people in our lives from encountering Jesus today?
 - Is there a specific area of your life where comfort or routine might be blocking you from helping someone else get closer to God? What would it look like to give that up for the sake of someone else's miracle?
- Pastor DJ said, 'You don't have to do everything, but you're called to do something.' What does it mean to 'pick up your corner of the mat,' and why does it matter that everyone does their part?
 - What specific gift, talent, or passion do you have that could be used to serve your church or community? What has held you back from using it, and what would saying 'yes' look like for you this season?
- When Jesus saw the faith of the four friends, He said to the paralyzed man, 'Son, your sins are forgiven' (Mark 2:5) — before healing him physically. Why did Jesus prioritize forgiveness over physical healing, and what does that tell us about what we truly need most?

- In your own life, where are you most tempted to seek a temporary solution instead of trusting God with the deeper, eternal need? How does the gospel — the reality that your sins can be completely forgiven — change the way you see that situation?
