Uses for Easy Fact Sheets

Our fact sheets have so many uses that they ought to be considered a staple in every Sunday school closet! Here are just some ways to use them:

- * before you teach a lesson on one of them in the Bible;
- * during lessons if students look confused about who a character is;
- * as a lesson pack in and of themselves, using three or four fact sheets a week until complete;
- * as great fill-in material for substitute teachers
- * as introductory and/or closing activities for class
- * as fill-in time material if you finish a lesson too soon!

Further Ideas for Use & Game Ideas

The fact sheets are just that-fact sheets. However, there are Bible lookups on each page, and games you can play with them as follows:

Guess Which Hero: Put the list of personalities, from either the Table of Contents or above, in plain sight. Start reading from a page, avoiding the character's name. The student who can guess the person correctly first gets a point. The student with the highest score at the game's end wins!

Who Came First Race: It's hard to understand history if you don't know when things happened. To help students get a great timeline going in their heads, make a copy of the sheets and cut out just the top information: name and dates. Cut off the number or you will give it away. Have students race to get all the Bible personalities in order chronologically based on the BC and AD dates.

Who Said That: Just read from the Bible character's quotes and have students guess who said it for points or prizes.

True or False: This is great if students are studying one worksheet at a time. It will reinforce all the material. Just take a sheet they are becoming familiar with, and either read a question or pretend to be reading and say the opposite. Students must guess whether the material you just presented was true or false.

A Great Essential Tool!

Fun 'N' Easy Fact Sheets is an essential tool, which will be sure to have students remembering our favorite Bible personalities much more accurately! Just keep several copies ready in the supply cabinet, and within a semester or year, your students will know them all!
