DELTONA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

² The one whose walk is blameless,
who does what is righteous,
who speaks the truth from their heart;
³ whose tongue utters no slander,
who does no wrong to a neighbor,
and casts no slur on others;
⁴ who despises a vile person
but honors those who fear the LORD
keeps an oath even when it hurts,
and does not change their mind;
⁵ who lends money to the poor without
interest;
who does not accept a bribe against
the innocent.
Whoever does these things
Will never be shaken. Psalms 15: 2-5 NIV

HONORING BLACK HISTORY MONTH: DR. KING'S UNSETTLING WITNESS

Rev. Carmelo Mercado, DMin, ChFC

February calls us to honor Black history—not as a symbolic gesture, but as a moral summons. At the center of this observance stands the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. (my favorite preacher), whose legacy is often softened into comforting soundbites while his prophetic challenge to a violent and racist nation is conveniently ignored. Dr. King did not merely comfort the afflicted; he unsettled the comfortable. He did not simply dream; he demanded repentance, justice, and courageous change. Racism remains America's original sin and one of its deepest moral failures. Though slavery has been outlawed, racism is still alive in hearts, habits, and in the very way our society is organized. Racism is immoral and evil because it assumes that one group is superior to another, primarily on the basis of skin color. While all people face hardships, for many Americans their skin color has never been the reason for exclusion from opportunity. But for over 400 years, people of color had been deprived, punished, or barred from equal access to education, healthcare, housing, employment, voting, and other basic human rights. Dr. King named this reality plainly, reminding us that “bootless people cannot lift themselves by their bootstraps.” Injustice built into laws, policies, and longstanding practices cannot be cured by moral clichés, pious slogan, hallow words, shallow spirituality, or “sanitized” history.

Dr. King reminded the nation that “there can be no justice without peace, and there can be no peace without justice.” One of the gravest threats to a just society, he warned, is silence in the face of inequity, unfairness, intolerance, and discrimination. Nowhere is this clearer than in his Letter from Birmingham Jail. Smuggled out on napkins, toilet paper, newspapers, and greasy paper bags, the letter was his response to well-meaning clergymen who deemed his nonviolent protests “unwise” and “untimely.” With piercing clarity, Dr. King lamented that the “great stumbling block” to racial equality was not the Ku Klux Klan, but the silent moderate—“who is more devoted to ‘order’ than to justice, who prefers a negative peace (the absence of tension) to a positive peace (the presence of justice).”

” His words remain as unsettling today as they were in 1963. For people of faith, this witness is inseparable from Scripture, where it repeatedly commands care for the poor, the widow, the orphan, and the stranger. Justice is not an optional add-on to the gospel; it is central to it. To honor Dr. King faithfully, we must do more than quote him—we must follow him. What, then, might faithfulness look like in our time? We can begin by: (a) listening empathetically to the hurts and perspectives of others without blaming, deflecting, or changing the subject; (b) admitting that racism is not just personal prejudice, but it is also baked into the system or woven into the customs of major institutions; (c) confessing our own stereotypes and ingrained prejudices; (d) avoiding emotionally charged or dismissive language; and (e) becoming actively anti-racist, with zero tolerance for bigot attitudes or actions in the beloved community. Since racism is a learned behavior—no infant is born a racist—it can also be unlearned through intentional discipleship and moral courage.

Black History Month is not about nostalgia; it is about truth-telling, repentance, and recommitment. To honor Dr. King is to embrace not only his comforting vision of an inclusive society, but also his prophetic insistence that America confront its violence, its injustice, and its addiction to prejudice. Despite our differences, there is only one human race. Every person yearns for dignity and deserves respect. May this February (as we prepare for Lent) move us beyond sentimentality into solidarity, beyond words into witness, and beyond silence into justice.

PATHWAYS TO PRAYER

“Pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances” (1 Thessalonians 5)

Psalm of David – Psalm 15:1-5

1. Lord, who may dwell in your sanctuary? Who may live on your holy hill?
2. He whose walk is blameless and who does what is righteous, who speaks the truth from his heart,
3. And has no slander on his tongue, who does his neighbor no wrong and casts no slur on his fellowman,
4. Who despises a vile man but honors those who fear the Lord, who keeps his oath even when it hurts,
5. Who lends his money without usury and does not accept a bribe against the innocent. He who does these things will never be shaken

Questions to Ponder:

1. Where would your dream house be?
2. What features would need to be present?
3. Who gets to live on God's "holy hill"?
4. Why isn't God's dwelling available on an "equal housing opportunity? Basis?
5. Why "despise" the vile?
6. In applying for God's dwelling, would your references say you have the required good character? Words? Works? Dealings? Why or why not?

Update from Joyce & Jerry McDaniels, Ethos 360

We hope this gives you a clearer picture of what our ‘in-between’ months look like—and how vital your prayers are to this ministry.

Prayer Summary

Mexico workshop preparation: most of our work with the team is complete and ready, what is left is travel and logistics plans.

Missionary Team: answering some final questions on their language data, defining terminology to be used in literacy classes.

Consultant Training: wisdom as we mentor new consultants and guide them toward leading future workshops.

Spiritual Impact: open hearts in the community and lasting fruit as people gain access to God’s Word.

Thank you for standing with us—your partnership makes this work possible, and we can’t wait to share what God does next.

Jerry & Joyce McDaniels
