

FOREFRONT SMALL GROUP STUDY

Series Overview: But God

When life feels finished, God is still writing the story. This series explores how He brings life out of what feels dead, works in the middle of confusion, uses disruption for His purpose, transforms what seems too far gone, and moves even when He feels hidden. Because if it's not too dead for God, then it's not too late for hope.

Icebreaker:

If you could instantly skip any “waiting season” in your life (past or present), what would it be?

DAILY WALK / NEXT STEP:

Pick one area of your life that feels uncertain or frustrating right now. Instead of trying to solve the whole thing, focus on one simple step of faithfulness this week—one “next right thing.” Do it with intention, trusting that God is at work even if you can't see the outcome yet.

GROUP STUDY

4.19.26

Read: Genesis 50:20 Genesis 39:2, 21 Psalms 105:17-19

1. Have you ever gone through a season where you couldn't see what God was doing at the time, but later it made more sense?
 2. Why do you think we tend to associate hard seasons with God being distant?
 3. Which part of Joseph's story stands out most to you and why?
 4. What does “being faithful in the next right thing” look like in your current season?
 5. How do you personally define faith—and has that definition been challenged or stretched recently?
 6. What are some practical ways we can remind ourselves that God is present when life feels overwhelming?
 7. Where might God be preparing you right now, even if it doesn't feel like it?
