

FOREFRONT SMALL GROUP STUDY

Series Overview:

Family Matters is a four-week series exploring God's design for relationships, marriage, parenting, and the home. Together we'll discover that family isn't about perfection—it's about formation, faithfulness, and living out God's purpose alongside the people He has placed in our lives. Whether your family feels thriving, messy, or somewhere in between, this series will offer practical hope and biblical wisdom for the journey.

ICEBREAKER:

Who is someone you've known that has had a marriage or relationship you admire? What made it stand out?

DAILY WALK / NEXT STEP:

Choose one intentional act of service for someone you love every day this week. It doesn't need to be dramatic. Send an encouraging text, help with a task, listen without distractions, offer forgiveness, or meet a need before being asked. At the end of the week, reflect on how choosing service over self impacted the relationship.

3. What's the difference between serving someone because you have to and serving someone because you love them?
4. Can you think of a time when a small act of sacrifice strengthened a relationship in your life?
5. Why do you think our culture often treats feelings as the foundation of relationships?
6. Which is harder for you personally: choosing service over self, sacrifice over convenience, or faithfulness over feelings? Why?
7. The message said marriage points beyond itself to Christ and the Church. What does that teach us about God's love for us?
