

FOREFRONT SMALL GROUP STUDY

BELL TOWERS: A CALL THAT CAN'T BE IGNORED
“Wake Up, Oh Sleeper”

Spiritual drift often begins with small compromises, distracted hearts, and delayed obedience. Scripture calls us to wake up, return to our first love, and respond to Jesus.

As we finish this series, we're building a “bell tower” of obedience: putting what we hear into practice.

Icebreaker:

If you could hire any fictional character to get you out of bed every morning, who would you choose—and would their approach work?

DAILY WALK / NEXT STEP:

Turn “Later” into a Plan

Complete this sentence: “This week, I will respond to God by ____.”

Choose one specific action and put it on your calendar. Tell someone in your group and ask them to check in before your next gathering.

GROUP STUDY

10.11.26

Read: Romans 13:11–12; Ephesians 5:14; Revelation 2:1–5

1. Why is recognizing a needed change often easier than actually making it?
2. Romans 13 pictures waking from sleep. What might being spiritually “asleep” look like in everyday life?
3. What distractions or small compromises pull our attention away from God? How can we notice that drift sooner?
4. In Revelation 2, Jesus recognizes hard work but confronts lost love. How can we stay active in faith while growing distant from Jesus?
5. Jesus says to remember, repent, and return. What has helped you love and trust Him? What might be worth returning to?
6. Ephesians 5:14 promises that Christ will shine on us. What hope does this offer someone who feels stuck or far from God?
7. What step of obedience do you sense you need to take? What makes it difficult, and how can this group support you?

Looking Ahead to October 18:

Next week, we're starting a new series!
