HAPPY NEW YEAR

I know what you're thinking: "Dane, you're a little late for the new year?" But each of you might be thinking of a different day of how I'm late. Some of you think that January 1st is the New Year, and you are right, if you are referring to the U.S. holiday, "New Years Day." Some might have thought of the fiscal new year for the government (October 1, if Congress could get their act together). A few Chinese people would think I was talking about the Chinese New Year (February 17 this year). Knowing this is the CBM Newsletter, you might be thinking about the first of Tishrei, which is called "Rosh Hashanah" or the "Head of the Year." Some are offended THAT is called the new year since God told Moses during the month of Nisan, "THIS month will mark the beginning of months for you; it is to be the first month of the year for you."<sup>1</sup>

This begs the question: "Why does the Jewish tradition have two different new year's days?" The answer is quite simple: they don't.

They have three.

OK, now I know that only muddles the question. I already gave the Scriptural basis for Nisan 1, and yes, there are good Scriptural reasons why the other two days are called a new year's day as well. But for brevity's sake, and because I want to make you thirsty to search the Scriptures yourself, I will not directly state where the other two are found.

The New Years Day I was talking about falls on February 2nd this year: It's called Tu B'Shevat (translated "The 15th of Shevat"), which is the New Year's for trees. So you now have more questions to ask, like: "Dane, is the tree of the field human<sup>2</sup> that I would have to celebrate its new year?" There are several places<sup>3</sup> in the Bible where men ARE described as trees, and even a blind man who was healed at the hand of Yeshua began to see men as trees <sup>4</sup>(his healing made him see physically and spiritually).

I would suggest that because the New Years are celebrated in threes, that it might have something to do with the trinity. I know what you're thinking: so no, I don't mean the Trinity River. More seriously though, I didn't capitalize the word, so I don't mean the Divine Trinity either. I mean the trinity that is YOU.

You are body, soul, and spirit. We see you as a body, but that's only when we see WITH our eyes. When we see THROUGH our eyes, we realize you are actually a soul that controls the body. Your spirit is not hanging around here, but God has it seated with Messiah in the Heavenlies.<sup>5</sup>

Traditionally, the day of Adam's creation was the first of Tishrei, which is part of why it is considered a new year. This would be the celebration of God making man in bodily form.

Exodus 12:2 makes a distinct point that the first of Nisan would "mark the beginning of months FOR YOU." This is to make a distinction that it may not be a beginning for everybody else. Everybody else might still be marking the first of Tishrei, or any other time as a beginning. But Nisan is the month God pulled the Children of Israel out of Egypt and made them HIS people<sup>6</sup>. This is the month that God demonstrates redemption to us, where we celebrate our spiritual adoption at a Passover Seder. This is the New Year for our spirit.

But humans are also like a tree. We take nourishment from the air<sup>7</sup> (Hebrew: Ruach, which is also Spirit). We are called to bear much fruit.<sup>8</sup> We are called to remain true to the root<sup>9</sup>, and are considered dead if we separate from the root<sup>10</sup>. The illustration of trees is to demonstrate the soul of humans. A renewal of the year for them is a renewal of our souls as well.

So this February 2nd, before you pull up roots to leave your home, go ahead and get all sappy with a tree, barking out that it wood have a happy and fruitful new year. Perhaps a kinship would branch out to growth in your own soul!
