THE LESSON AT A GLANCE

A growing trend in the United States is the perception that Christianity is immoral, even evil. Many people perceive Christians as hypocritical, hateful, exclusionary, indoctrinated, racist, sexist, oppressive, etc. An example of this perception is how Christians are typically portrayed in movies and by the news media. Incorrect perceptions of Christianity are not new, and we can be encouraged because the church has been successful in reaching others with the gospel in the past despite such false accusations.

THE MAIN IDEA

This lesson will explore ways to effectively refute some of the mistaken perceptions that abound in today's culture about being a follower of Christ.

QUESTIONS TO EXPLORE

How can we show that being a follower of Christ is different from what many non-believers have concluded about Christianity?
