THE LESSON AT A GLANCE

This week we will wrap up our series, "The Essentials of Disciple-Making," by looking at the how-to's of disciple-making. How do we go about making disciples, and what is our responsibility in this process?

Following God together, and challenging one another to be faithful, is a recurring theme throughout the Bible. In Deuteronomy, Moses told the Israelites repeatedly to obey God's law. Joshua charged the people to choose who they would serve, but he and his family would serve God (Joshua 24:15). And Proverbs 27:17 says, "Iron sharpens iron, and one person sharpens another."

The Bible is clear. Not only are we responsible to God, but we are also responsible for one another. Disciple-making is the process through which we encourage, equip, and send followers of Jesus to reach others in His name. It is the privilege and responsibility of all who know Christ.

THE MAIN IDEA

Followers of Jesus are called not just to be disciples, but also to make disciples. Jesus perfectly modeled disciple-making by meeting people where they were, teaching for life change, and developing leaders and empowering them to serve.

QUESTIONS TO EXPLORE

Are all Christians called to be disciple-makers? What keeps us from investing in the discipleship process of others?
