

Faith Accepts What Is to Come

Scripture

Habakkuk 3:2

Reflection

Habakkuk had spent much of the book questioning God. He did not understand why God had allowed wickedness to continue or why He would use the Babylonians as an instrument of judgment. By chapter 3, however, Habakkuk had reached a place of surrender. He still knew that difficult days were ahead, but he was prepared to trust God through them.

Faith does not mean that we always understand what God is doing. It means that we trust Him even when we do not. Sometimes following God requires us to accept circumstances we would never choose for ourselves. True faith recognizes that God remains sovereign, wise, and good even when the path ahead looks painful.

Illustration

A passenger on an airplane may not understand every decision the pilot makes. Turbulence may come, the route may change, and the flight may become uncomfortable. Yet the passenger continues because he trusts that the pilot sees things from a perspective he cannot.

Application

Consider an area of your life where you are struggling to accept what God has allowed. Instead of focusing only on changing the circumstances, ask God to help you trust Him within them.

Prayer

Lord, help me trust You when I do not understand what You are doing. Give me the faith to surrender my plans, my fears, and my expectations to You. Help me believe that Your will is always best. Amen.
